RUSH

LEO M. HENIKOFF, M.D.
PRESIDENT
CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER

May, 1996

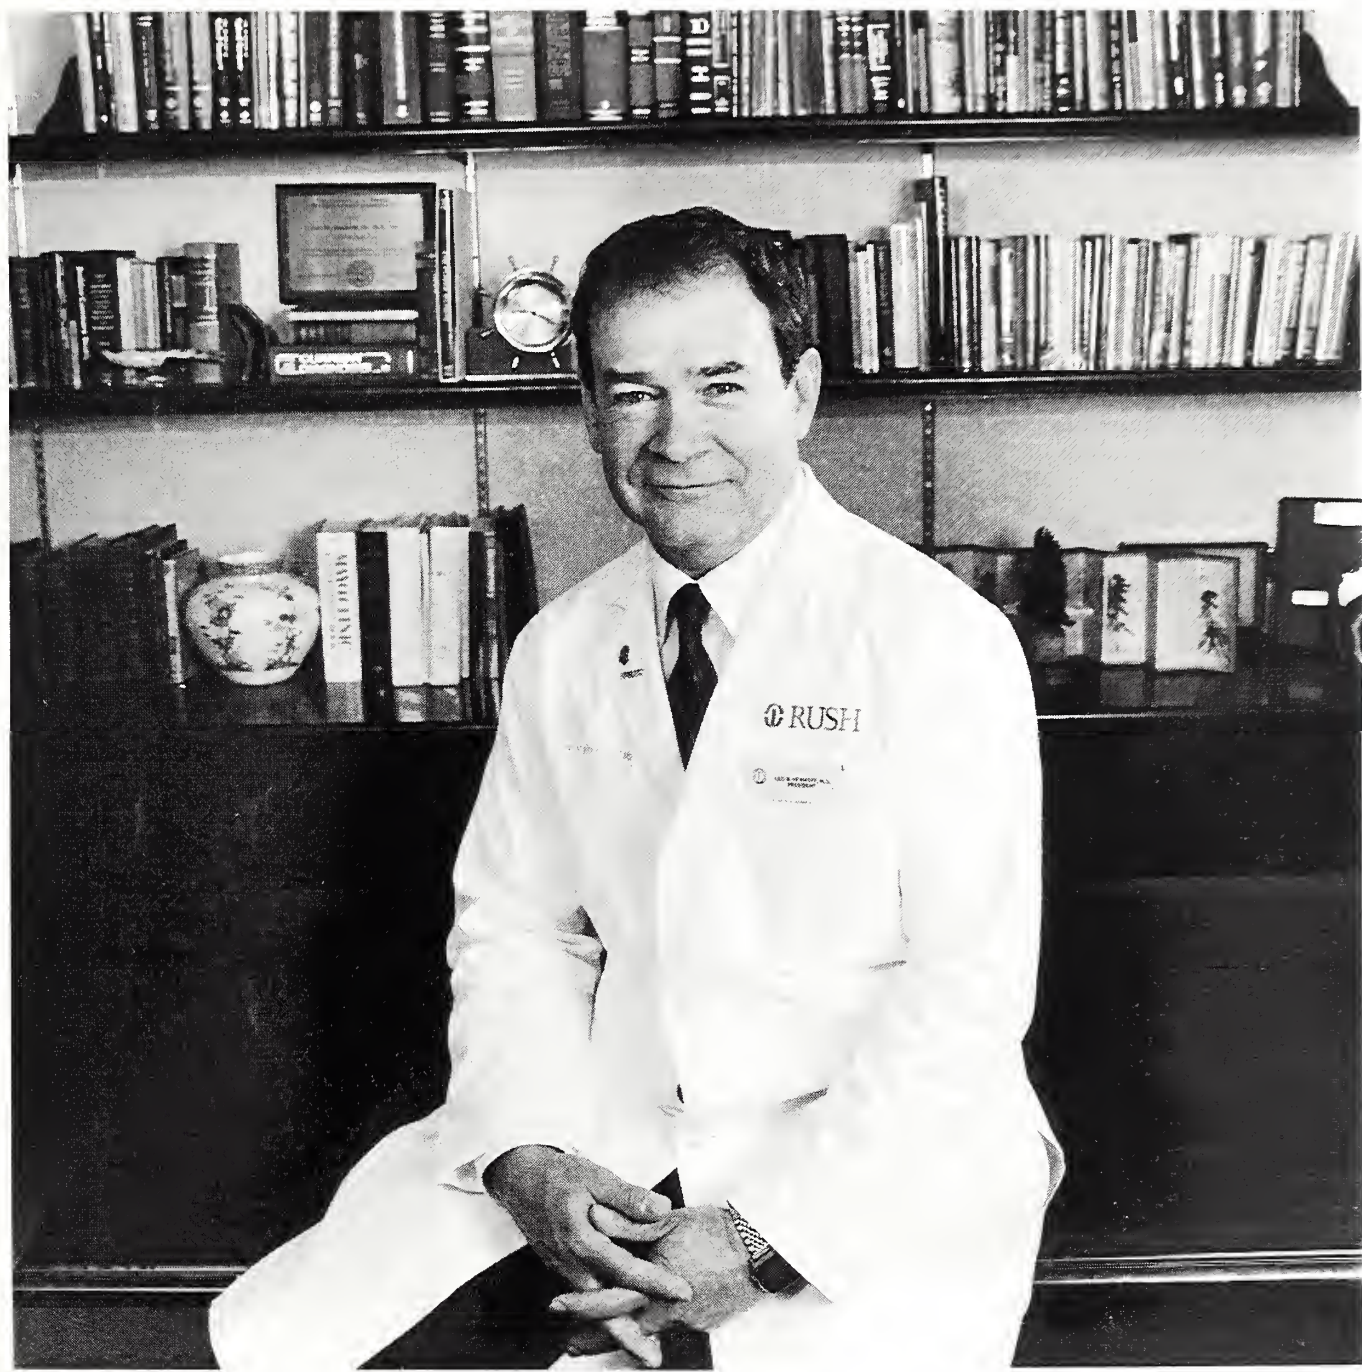

To the Class of 96:

In 1969 when Rush Medical College was reactivated and merged with Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital, those on the planning and implementation team used to refer to what was happening as "an old idea that became new again." In essence what we had in mind was the replication of the old idea that the best education of medical professionals takes place in an environment where patient care is the primary end, not a by-product. The historical precedent in our own case, of course, was the approximation of this ideal in the establishment of Presbyterian Hospital in 1883 by Rush Medical College faculty for the formation of future physicians in a patient care setting. It was then, and it is today, a philosophical approach to medical education that has made your own educational experience, if not unique, quite distinctive. As you pursue your careers in medicine, we are confident that your appreciation of this patient-oriented experience will deepen over the years.

"The Pulse" yearbook is also an old tradition, and I am delighted that you are continuing it. It will undoubtedly be your companion over your professional lives; in the early years as a ready reference on your classmates, in later ones as a means of recreating the spirit and atmosphere in which your success had its origins. Guard it well.

With all good wishes, I am

Sincerely,

Leo Henikoff, M.D.

See you in five years
when they let me out!

As we exit medical school, after four years of varied learning, growth, and experiences, remember one's self. Two incredible parents, one excellent younger brother, fifteen years as a saxophonist, a wrestler, weightlifter, world traveler, Jew, writer - these are some influences that make me who I am. Only through honest, introspective analysis can one hope to mature and transcend beyond the rampant superficialities with which this world is so plagued. As my father and some guy named William Shakespeare are fond of saying: 'There's nothing so becomes a man as modest stillness and humility.' Thanks.

INBAR: You have been and always will be my first, best, most beautiful friend. I love you. Your happiness means mine. I should be so lucky to also find my soulmate one day.

JOE: Here's to beyond these talking medical school walls and to a friendship that'll span the great divide.

ERWIN: Hey, arachnid-man, welcome to my world! How about a kiss?

CLASS: Never sweat the small stuff. Everything always works out in the end. There is no destiny but that which you choose as your own. Everything happens for a reason.

As a part of this long journey nears the end, I wish to thank Rush for the opportunity and all of my new friends success and happiness in their lives and careers. A special thanks to a few, who together we endured the struggles, celebrated the milestones, pulled each other up when the one was down and helped each other through these last four years. You touched my life in so many ways, thanks.

But the biggest thanks of all go to my wife, Karen, my mom and dad and these two young gentlemen pictured here, Sean age 10 and Brian age 6. Without their help, sacrifices and understanding, I never would have made it this far. When things got really difficult and I wasn't sure I could make it, my boys would give me a big hug and ask "How's it going dad?", then it just didn't seem so impossible.

May we all be the good doctors we struggle to be.

» There's always more to be done when it comes to the health of our children. A report from the Children's Defense Fund notes that every day in the United States three children die from child abuse; 15 children die from guns; 27 children die from poverty; 95 babies die before their first birthday; 2,699 infants are born into poverty; 3,336 babies are born to unmarried women; 100,000 children are homeless; 135,000 children bring guns to school, and 1.2 million latchkey children arrive home to a house in which there is a gun.

I shall be telling with a sigh
Somewhere ages and ages hence:
Two roads diverged in a wood; and I-
I took the one less traveled by,
And that has made all the difference.

I feared for us,
For our togetherness,
For our friendship.
Some scars refuse to heal,
Staying to remind us of our differences.
But we still are friends, "friends forever,"
Till Death do us part,
Thank you for the greatest gift you could give me:
yourself.

Faith is holding on
when you want to let go.
It is letting go
when you want to hold on.

Faith is saying yes
when everything else says no.
It is believing all things are possible in the midst of impossibilities.

Faith is looking beyond what is
and trusting for what will be.
It is the presence of light in darkness
The presence of God in all.

♡ Dear Mom ♡

Through all the good times and bad times, you were always there with your unconditional love and support. It is through the example that you set that I acquired the ability to care deeply for those who are downtrodden, the "throw-aways" of society, and to believe that with God's help and personal desire we can achieve anything we set out to accomplish. It is with much joy and gratitude that I complete medical school and begin the practice of caring for the sick, the poor, and helping those less fortunate in society. I promise, Mom, to always remember the unlimited compassion, strength, and love that are so much a part of who you are and to strive to use these qualities in my dealings with others. Until we can embrace again for all eternity, may God keep your soul safe.

All my love,
beth

*The people I love the best jump into work head first without dallying in the shadows and swim off with sure strokes almost out of sight.
They seem to become natives of that element,
the black sleek heads of seals
bouncing like half-submerged balls.*

*I love people who harness themselves, an ox to a heavy cart,
who pull like water buffalo, with massive patience,
who strain in the mud and the muck to move things forward,
who do what has to be done, again and again.*

*I want to be with people who submerge in the task, who go into the fields to harvest and work in a row and pass the bags along,
who are not parlor generals or field deserters
but move in a common rhythm
when the food must come in or the fire be put out.*

*The work of the world is as common as mud.
Botched, it smears the hands, crumbles to dust.
But the thing worth doing well done
has a shape that satisfies, clean and evident.
Greek amphoras for wine or oil,
Hopi vases that held corn, are put in museums
but you know they were made to be used.
The pitcher cries for water to carry and a person for work that is real.*

Ten thousand flowers in the spring,
the moon in autumn,
A cool breeze in summer,
Snow in winter.
If your mind isn't crowded
by unnecessary things,
This is the best season of your life.

Medical school has been a challenging and yet rewarding four years of too many hours, too much information, too little sleep, and many great memories.

Special thanks to the three women in my life without whom ...

my mom,
my daughter,
and especially my wife Lynn.
